Loretta Colbeck

Loretta@candidsnapsphotography.com

An award winning photographer originally from Baldur Manitoba. The greatest gift photography has ever given me is the chance to look at things differently, to see beauty in the ordinary and to see extraordinary where there isn't any. I believe we live in a beautiful world and I shoot it for the joy of it.

I like being part of the fabric of this city. There is joy in walking Toronto streets and alleys with a camera in hand. There is satisfaction in telling a story through pictures and this city has a myriad of stories to tell. But most of all, my passion lies in weaving together photography, Toronto, and the telling of a story into something interesting.

Sasha Furlani

Born and raised in and around Toronto, I am happy to combine two of my joys with the Toronto Photo Walks Group...walking and photography. As a passionate street photographer I aim to capture images of the city in a manner that reveals the personality of this time and place. When out on a walk I look to discover something new or unique in the places we see most often, as well as the places seldom seen.

Originally from Kingston, I have resided in the GTA for almost three decades and consider it home. An avid photographer my whole life but relatively new to street photography, I am drawn to it by the endless variety of photographic opportunities in this large vibrant urban community. Every season and each passing year offers ever-changing subject matter.

I founded the Toronto Photo Walks group in 2009, and since then have led over 70 walks around the city. As a fan of motor racing I am excited to be a photographer for the Toronto Honda Indy organizers for the past five years, but when there are no fast cars to shoot I enjoy exploring Toronto at walking pace.

Michael Ishlove

As opposed to my daily work life in an office, I enjoy the pursuit of creativity through the lens of the camera. At the same time exploring the city landscape and city life, as it unfolds as I see it. There is beauty in the city, and as part of the TOPW I am amazed at the art I see my fellow photographers produce, which inspires me.

Georgette Peters

gal.george@gmail.com

I discovered photography with the purchase of a Pentax K1000 film SLR at a Halifax flea market in 2001. A graduate of the York University Fine Arts program, I found taking photographs a new way to express myself and show how I see the world around me. Though I own a couple of digital cameras, my love is truly for film photography ... there's just something that feels "right" about it. I've had the pleasure of participating in various solo and group shows since 2009.

Dom Santiago

Domnic is a world traveler. He attains his nirvana when he is on a journey, going somewhere new. Photography as a hobby was born in Toronto, a few years ago, the hobby turned into passion, which turned into obsession.

He wishes to engage the viewer on an abstract level, going beyond the visual subject matter. These are his first works in Fine Art Photography. The photographs are printed on highest quality Fine Art paper, with UV protected non-reflective glass, with customized frames and designed as archival works. These works are one of a kind, and will not be reproduced in the future.

I'm a fine art photographer who specializes in the abstract images I draw from everyday life. I want my photographs to have a painted quality to them, to appear textured. Photography tends to be a somewhat solitary pursuit. TOPW allows me to search for imagery in a social setting. "We walk, we talk, we shoot"

Photography and art (illustration in particular) have long been two of my favourite pastimes. As a photographer, I like exploring nature and the world of everyday objects. I take most of my pictures in and around Toronto, many of them on Toronto Photo Walks.

A longtime resident of Toronto, I am an avid street photographer and committed member of the Toronto Photo Walks Group. I seek to document the myriad components of life in a large urban community. Toronto Photo Walks (TOPW) is a group of photographers with a wide range of abilities, from accomplished photographers to those just starting out, who get together to take pictures in and around Toronto. All of the pictures in this show were taken on one of our walks.

The group is open to anyone who wants to get out and about, see more of the city with photographers of all levels of experience & ability, to shoot together, to share hints, tips and ideas ... and it's free!

The regular schedule is the first & third Saturday of each month. Sometimes there are ad hoc walks arranged on our Facebook page; these are not "official" TOPW walks so they aren't given a hashtag and we don't post the photos to the Flickr group, but they are an additional opportunity to meet up and shoot.

The starting point for the regular walks is usually posted a couple of days before the walk; we try to find somewhere TTC-accessible to meet, somewhere for lunch and a pub for the end. The routes are roughly planned out – partly to ensure we find a lunch stop and/or post-walk pubs, but also because people join the walk at different times of the day. The route can change if the group spots something interesting; sometimes small groups split off and meet up with the rest of us later on; it's all very "loose".

The TOPW group

The aim of TOPW is to give photographers of all abilities a chance to meet, share tips, learn from each other, and discover more of Toronto and its environs. It's not a "formal" camera club; there's no stuffy critiques of each other's photos, although it is great to see everyone's pictures and many people like to receive feedback.

Where do I sign up?

There's no formal membership list, although most people join the Flickr and/or Facebook groups in order to get informed of updates. (There's now a mailing list too.)

There's no minimum standard of photographic skill or equipment required – you're welcome even if you've just got your first "point & shoot" camera and haven't even read the manual yet!
